Wider Roads Here Do Not Include Main Highway

Despite the fact that the provincial department of highways has made no announcement regarding opening up of Patricia Bay Highway to a four-lane route attention is on Saanich Peninsula roads.

At Central Saanich council meeting on Tuesday evening it was announced that plans are now under way for the widening of West Saanich Road to 80 feet. In view of the impending increase in ferry traffic through the area the department is now contemplating opening up East Saanich Road to the same width, it was stated.

Rhythm Of Old Review Stayed With Her As Far As Terrace

Rhythm of the press is a familiar sound in a newspaper plant. So it proved in Terrace recently, according to a story appearing in a recent issue of the Terrace Herald.

Mrs. Fergie Kamp, a recent arrival in Terrace, commented that the press rumbling in the background must become familiar to the staff of The Herald. The Herald writer expressed surprise that a stranger would recognize the sound of a press as such.

Mrs. Kamp replied that she edited the school paper at North Saanich high school and that it was printed on the press of the local paper. The Review.

The Herald writer expressed

Chairman of the campaign in the area is Maj. A. E. Smart, of McNish Road.

Bomber Pilot, Rancher And Author New Review Writer

Regular columns of several Review writers have long drawn commendation. This newspaper has frequently been advised that the contributions of Muriel D. Wilson and of Madeleine Till have added to the pleasure which The Review gives its readers. Consequently The Review is happy to present this week the first article of a new columnist, Gray Campbell of Carleton Place.

Mr. Campbell is no ordinary writer, as subscribers will soon learn. He draws from a wealth of experience gained in various parts of the world. He is already a well-known Canadian author.

A native of Ottawa, Mr. Campbell received a well-rounded education in that city. A sense of adventure led him to join the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and he served seven years with the force, principally in southern Alberta. In 1938, with the war drums booming in Europe, he proceeded to England and joined the Royal Air Force as a pilot. He flew all during the hostilities, completing a tour of operations as a Lancaster pilot over Europe. During the war he married a South African girl and they have four children share his enthusiasm for life in this area.

Retired from the R.A.F., Mr. Campbell returned with his family to southern Alberta, operating a successful cattle ranch near Cowley, in the foothills. Here he found time for writing and his first book, "We Found Peace" was popularly acclaimed and enjoyed a wide sale. He is a regular contributor to many leading magazines, and other books will be published shortly.

Mr. Campbell will write a regular column for The Review under the heading of "Beachcomber".

During the course of the convention schools in the district will be closed and students will enjoy a holiday on the Friday.

High school teachers from the island will gather in Victoria for a convention at the same time.

Thank You From Labrador

Mrs. G. H. Holmes was presiding when Mrs. Sinclair who is teaching in Labrador, the W.A. had recently sent her a parcel with household articles to help toward fixing the teacherage where Mrs. Sinclair lives.

A thank-you letter was received from Mrs. Sinclair who is teaching in Labrador, the W.A. had recently sent her a parcel with household articles to help toward fixing the teacherage where Mrs. Sinclair lives.

It was decided to give $5 to the National Film Board. A donation of $20 will be made to the Christmas cheer fund.

Arrangements were finalized for the annual Thanksgiving supper, to be held in the parish hall, October 21.

Early Raspberries

C. W. Alger, White Birch Road, Sidney, brought to The Review office last week a number of large, ripe raspberries which he had picked in his garden.

Mr. Alger said that he had had several other helpings of raspberries previous to the ones brought to The Review.

CAR WINNER

Victor and Tony Eng, two young enthusiastic salesmen of tickets for the Chinese Bazaar of the Chinese Benevolent Association, were sorry that none of their patrons won the 1959 Chevrolet car.

The car, won by T. A. Mitchell, 1633 Burton Road, Victoria, with ticket number 7739, was offered as a door prize at the recent 75th anniversary, Arts and Historical Exhibition.

The draw, which was to have been drawn earlier was delayed because all the ticket stubs had not been returned from distant places in Ontario and Quebec.

HE WAS AN HONEST PUNTER

AND THE SMILE ON HER FACE IS REAL

A lady, serving as a cashier during the recent race meet in North Saanich, is delighted to learn that patrons of the track are honest as can be.

Early in the meet she was required to pay out a sum of several hundreds of dollars to a race winner. Inadvertently she overpaid the customer by $100.

When her cash was checked out that evening, the shortage showed up. She tried to smile, but it was difficult.

Several days elapsed. Then a racing official in Sidney received a

Shortage Is Blamed For Rising Cost

Centennial Park on Wallace Drive is an indication of the shortage of water in Central Saanich, reports Reeve H. R. Brown.

The reeve told Friday evening's public meeting at Mount Newton high school that the well in the park originally cost 50 cents monthly for electricity costs in pumping water. The charge has now risen to $6.50 as truck after truck is loaded with water to feed properties without their own supply.

New Plumbers For Sidney

Dewey McGahan and Cecil Chromister are offering to Sidney and North Saanich residents 24-hour service in plumbing and heating.

The couple, with many years of experience behind them are opening a shop at 9843 Second St. where Mr. Chromister's wife, Mary, will answer calls at GR 5-1551 for any-one desiring plumbing and heating services.

Mr. McGahan, who operated his own shop in Aldergrove for eight years to unite his friends of 45 years has joined their trades under the name of Sidney Plumbers. Mr. Chromister has been practicing his trade in the Colwood area the past year and decided to settle with Mr. McGahan in the Sidney area and offer their services to the surrounding district.

LAST TO GO

Last final legacy from Centennial Year has disappeared from the village of Sidney. R. N. Shanks, among the first to support a beard in the contest of 1958, had become widely known for the longevity of his whiskers.

When he walked abroad this week, clean-shaven, he was recognized by few. It was the last of the centennial beards and it is a thing of the past.

Pioneer's Services To Be Held In Church He Founded

Pioneer resident of Brentwood, Frederick James Sluggitt, passed away on October 13 in Victoria at the age of 89 years. Mr. Sluggitt had lived in the Saanich area for the past 85 years and together with his father and brothers built Sluggitt Memorial church in Brentwood. He was a member of the Saanich Pioneer Society.

Besides his wife, Esther, he leaves four sons, Claude, Clarence, George and Daryl, all of Brentwood; three daughters, Mrs. R. Knott (Muriel) of Brentwood, Mrs. W. C. Shade (Phyllis) of Sidney, and Mrs. D. W. Smith (Myrtle), Victoria; and sixteen grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held in Sluggitt Memorial church, Brentwood, on Friday, Oct. 16 at 3:15 p.m. Rev. T. Wescott will officiate and interment will take place in Shady Creek cemetery. Arrangements are being handled by McCall Brothers, Victoria.

Local Jockey Wins Two

Finishing the last day of racing for the season was done in grand style by Sidney native son, Dennis Anderson, who rode two horses to wins in the Thanksgiving Day meet at Sandown Park.

Abroad Ruffling's Last in the fourth race the apprentice jockey rode his horse to the finish line a length-and-a-half ahead of the second place horse, Dry Fox. Riding the same horse earlier in the season Anderson won his first race of his career at Sandown.

In the mile and 70 yards eighth race the local jockey jockey, Buddy H. to the wire a length ahead of Baby Rose to pay the bettors $10.00.

With 13 mounts Dennis Anderson won three races, came in second once and placed third twice.

Betting had been down generally for the race meet due to the wet weather but Thanksgiving Day set a new record when a total of $107,057 was poured through the mists.

Impassioned Plea For Water Is Sounded By Farmer's Wife

—Mrs. P. C. Spek Gains Applause

Band Seeks Subscriptions

The drive is on! and North Saanich High School Band students are knocking on doors soliciting magazine subscriptions, new or renewed.

Under the Curtis plan the drive has been organized into a short two-week campaign. Object of the scheme is to enable the students to finance, themselves, their proposed journey to Hawaii.

B. J. O'Rourke, educational representative for the Curtis Company, addressed the students Wednesday night at the high school and outlined the rules of the subscription drive.

Band members expressed the hope that residents would respond to the drive and asked that householders be patient if they are approached twice, as some duplications may occur.

If a householder is overlooked and would like to purchase a subscription to one of the 100 magazines offered they can call GR 5-2113 or GR 5-1763.

CHAMBER TO MEET AGAIN OCTOBER 20

Members of Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce will hold their initial meeting of the fall season at Hotel Sidney on the evening of Tuesday, Oct. 20, at eight o'clock.

A full turnout of members is requested by President M. R. Eaton who reports that a challenging list of business awaits decision.

Move of the ferry terminal to the new wharf, a short distance south of the one presently used, and other changes in the commercial life of the community will be discussed.

Highlighted by an impassioned appeal to housewives from Mrs. P. C. Spek, Central Saanich water meeting on Friday evening closed on a note of harmony not previously evident in the discussions. During the evening exchanges between proponents and objectors became heated, but the council received a warm assurance of support from a previously alienated ratepayer.

Mrs. Spek, of 3190 Martindale Road, set the pace when she stood to plead for the housewives of Central Saanich who are without water.

"We are not interested in what they pay at Saltair," she stated, when a long debate threatened on comparative costs between various water districts. "The woman who has to carry water does not care what it will cost her. If her husband has to work overtime to pay for it, he'll have to work overtime."

Mrs. Spek enlarged on the problems facing the housewife who is without water.

"She bathes the little girls, then the little boys; then she bathes the dog and then she scrubs the floor. A woman can make a pail of water go a long way."

"Any farmer who doesn't want water is making a great mistake. It's not so much how many acres he has as what he does with it."

"Anyone who isn't interested in water is not a good citizen. I don't need water in my kitchen, it's there. But I'm going to vote for water. Every woman should vote for water. She should have compassion on those who haven't."

When the Keating housewife abruptly resumed her seat there was a brief pause before the applause commenced.

He Will Pay Cash!

David Prosser, of Mount Newton Road later rose to enquire whether Mrs. Spek appreciated that the $100 per annum she would be required to pay for water would be a tax and that in the event of her husband's losing his job in the next 25 years her property could be sold to recover it.

Mr. Spek rose briefly to announce that he would meet any such obligation in cash.

E. Redvers Smith, Mount Newton Cross Road, announced that he had been opposed to the original plan as outlined by the council.

"I am entirely in favor of the scheme, as presented tonight," he told the meeting. "I am confident that if it is left in this form, including provision for a balancing tank, it will receive a favorable reception when it is presented."

The meeting was called in Mount Newton high school to conclude explanation of the municipal water program commenced at an earlier meeting in the same location. Attendance was considerably lower than at the meeting several weeks ago. About 150 people were in the hall.

Engineer H. D. Dawson set the ball rolling when he read out a number of prepared questions and answers.

Only One Prime Need

How many in the municipality want water? he was asked. Mr. Dawson observed that there had been 200 names on the petition which set the investigation into motion. E. B. Hawkins, East Saanich Road, later suggested that only 37 of the names listed needed water.

The great majority of signers were seeking water for domestic purposes, concluded Mr. Dawson. Of nine known applicants for subdivision at the present time, only two were among signers of that original petition.

Can those requiring water afford to pay $50 to $200 for 25 years? Mr. Dawson declined to answer. The council could not find an answer, neither could the engineer, he stated, that question could only be answered by the ratepayers concerned.

Water is the prime necessity of mankind, said the engineer. Almost everyone in the hall drove a car at a cost considerably exceeding the cost of water. A car is not the prime necessity. Many spend more on smoking, but cigarettes are not the prime necessity. Many spend more with the government, purchasing the commodities in which they specialize, said Mr. Dawson, but even that is not the prime necessity. Of the charge that the projected cost of water in Central Saanich will be five times that of Victoria, he stated that the installation and cost of a 1/2-inch connection will be 1 1/2 times the city cost and that a one-inch connection will be cheaper.

Referring to the question of costs, Mr. Dawson explained that the man who pays $44 per annum in taxes would be required to pay another $1 to cover the cost of the projected balancing tank.

The municipality would be under obligation to supply water to department of transport and department of agriculture and other users, agreed Mr. Dawson.

Private Airfields To Provide Their Own Fire Equipment

Fire Chief C. W. Rowles requested that Central Saanich council look into the possibility of buying some form of equipment to fight a gasoline fire.

He pointed out that a number of planes were using the private landing field belonging to Butler Brothers and should one catch on fire the department had only water to fight the fire, which, the chief said, was next to useless. The only proper system to fight gasoline fires is by the use of foam. It was pointed out that a pickup tube used to fight the fires, that attaches to

Beachcomber
SOME IMPRESSIONS OF SIDNEY
(By GRAY CAMPBELL)

Gray Campbell

Sidney, like Circe, is an enchantress. But where Circe changed the companions of Odysseus into swine, Sidney turns people into human beings. They begin to live again. How many have come here for a visit, tired, tense or disturbed from the mainland struggle, to be slowed down, relaxed by the soft air and the sea, the casual lanes lined with homes set in charming gardens. They have gone away in a more reflective mood, only to return within a year to settle. Sometimes they have not gone away at all.

Where else could you find a more agreeable climate, more stimulating people interested in other things than their particular profession or trade? A common bond seems to make for a happy community; love of the garden cult, or the sea and the ships that sail it or the sport to be found in it.

What other community of comparable size can provide an evening of symphony from 70 superbly trained and led musicians for the price of two dozen eggs? It doesn't really matter if the orchestra bears the name of a settlement a few miles down the highway.

VARIETY

Where else in Canada is there less dust, heat, mud, cold or snow? Where can you find more airsoft noise and a greater display of beards, so many houses for sale or such interesting looking characters, so much variety packed into such a small area?

Sidney is rural and cosmopolitan, wooded and waterlapped. You may live inland with animals or by the sea with a boat. You can be close to your neighbors, or if you prefer them well scattered find an acre down a shaded lane that will afford complete privacy.

Canada is a dynamic, buoyant country, a young giant striding with big steps. Sometimes she can be shockingly materialistic. She is so busy hammering away at the creation of the new image, changing the face and character of her cities and frontier, the Sidney area looks like an oasis, a haven of culture and good living.

A BRADFORD MAN

The visitor who goes away to reflect on these things only to return remembering the contact he has made as a stranger. It may be a talk with the owner of a fishing boat, the pleasant little lady from the notions store, the friendly service from the druggist, the tea room or the book store with good solid titles. It may be the comfortable, casual way people dress, the lack of tourist trap atmosphere or the friendly folk who run a boat rental service, apologetic if you fail to catch any fish. The varied English accents are a constant delight. "I come from mucky Bradford," said the driver of a van.

Everyone seems to be enjoying it. They are doing. And it is pleasant to reflect that all the interests and activities may be indulged in by people within any income bracket.

Happiness, success or failure, it may be argued, is simply a state of mind. The climate, the general atmosphere is fallow ground for the contentment that brings happiness and, with it, success. Success does not have to be materialistic. Success is living. Walter Hagen is worth quoting again. "We only pass discovery with others. He wants to communicate and, if he is lucky, one remarked that prairie eyes are likely to see ordinary things with a fresh approach. And that may be the reason behind this column.

Little Choice Between Lakes

DISCONTINUED

The pipeline would not require re-lining for about 17 years, estimated the engineer. He agreed that the reports of earlier investigations showed a likely relining date of 1962, but he and his associates had discounted these reports.

Mr. Dawson was asked why Saanich did not buy the system. Ten years ago there was a move afoot whereby the ratepayers of Ward Six, now Central Saanich, were invited to take over the system. It lost by 17 votes.

There is little to choose between Elk Lake and Sooke Lake, stated Mr. Dawson. Water sources used by innumerable cities cross the continent are also bathing areas.

After filtering and chlorination the water is never contaminated. Contamination of water, even without processing, remains within a few feet of the surface and the deeper water is unaffected. It is from the deeper points that the supply is taken. Waiting for the Greater Victoria Water Board to distribute water in Central Saanich would delay the supply 10 or 15 years and the ultimate answer would be no cheaper than the plan offered now, asserted Mr. Dawson.

DISPUTE ACT

A suggestion that Brentwood Water District might acquire the system led to a dispute between the speaker and V. E. Virgin, from the floor. The engineer stated that the Municipal Act prohibited a district within a municipality from expanding its boundaries. Mr. Virgin refuted that statement. It was later answered by Brentwood Waterworks District Chairman V. C. Dawson who explained that the act did so limit the activities of a district for logical reasons. It was agreed

AIR FREIGHT IN FLOWERS

Reaches $600,000 This Year

J. H. Crossley, research officer at the Dominion Experimental Farm, addressed Sidney Rotary Club recently on flower research that is currently under way at the farm. He made particular reference to chrysanthemum investigations. He explained that cut flowers, though generally regarded as a luxury item, bring in considerable revenue to the district.

Although the chrysanthemum in this area is not the leading flower crop value-wise, export of chrysanthemums via the local airport to the prairies, which is the chief market, is the biggest single item in the fall flower traffic.

SHIPPED BY AIR

Since air cargo was inaugurated in 1948 at Patricia Bay, practically all flowers are now shipped that way whereas it used to be by boat and rail. Since 1948 the tonnage of fall flowers has risen steadily from two tons to 52.8 tons in 1958, which is the latest period of reporting, as 1959 figures are not yet complete. This 52.8 tons represents a value of approximately $126,720, of which two-thirds are chrysanthemum dollars. The balance is chiefly earned by carnations and roses.

Spring flower traffic from Patricia Bay in 1948 (mostly daffodils) was 21.5 tons and it too has grown to the point where, in 1959, it reached the highest point, 180 tons, valued at approximately $468,000. This means that in total $694,000 of flower business a year is now being funnelled in through Patricia Bay airport and to this extent Sidney and Victoria district flower growers are keeping the economic wheels turning.

SOLUTION

Where flower research at Saanich fits into this picture is in working out the solutions to flower growers' problems. For example, one problem is the case of the local field grown chrysanthemums which a few years ago was a poor competitor with the greenhouse-grown prairie product. By a series of colored slides Mr. Crossley showed the part that his department is playing in evolving methods and adapting techniques to assist local growers to hold and to improve their position in their highly specialized business.

St. Mary's W.A. Plan Sale

St. Mary's W.A., Saanich, met in the Sunday school room last Tuesday evening, with Mrs. Marion Bickford presiding. Fifteen members were present. The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn, and the W.A. prayer.

A donation was made to the Unitarian Service Commission of Canada. A special meeting of the W.A. members will be held on October 27 at 8 p.m. to make final arrangements for catering for the P.T.A. Council of School District 63 Conference supper on November 5.

Success of the first evening service held in St. Mary's this fall was reported, and one service will continue to be held on the first Sunday of each month at 7.30 in the evening. A social hour will follow in the Sunday school room.

A sale of new and used articles is planned for Saturday, Nov. 14, commencing at 2 p.m. Other stalls will include flowers and plants, and a candy stall sponsored by the junior auxiliary. Tea will be served.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostesses, Ethel Turner, Eileen Pelter and Claudia Whipple.

"The first thing a man needs in this life is water," he said, "if not for his own selfish needs, then for his neighbor."

"Why is Mr. Dawson so interested in our buying this system?" asked Mr. Hawkins.

Before a reply could be formulated a voice called from the floor, "Because he's a human being." Any further comment was drowned out by applause and foot stamping.

Mr. Virgin concluded his comments for the evening with a warm commendation of the plan.

"If you are crazy enough to turn down this scheme," he suggested, "I wonder whether we could urge the provincial government to permit the Brentwood Waterworks District to extend its operation to serve other parts of the municipality."

With the impressive spectacle of Mr. Virgin and Mr. Pickles pleading for the same cause, the meeting was brought to a close.

Convention In Sidney Attracts 746 Visitors

"It's a paradox for world politicians to talk about peace when they are set on imposing their will upon the nations. Moreover it is impossible to have a real lasting peace where nations tenaciously hold to their cherished ideologies," said Mr. Saltmarsh in addressing 746 at the SANSCHA hall Sunday afternoon climaxing the three-day circuit assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses in Sidney, October 9 to 11.

The speaker went on to say that the opposing forces of the east and west work on the theory that the power holding the ultimate position and weapon will dominate the earth, resulting in the frantic rush to conquer outer space. "But," queried Mr. Saltmarsh, "when you come to think of it, is it not the Creator of heaven and earth Jehovah God, who holds the ultimate position? It is time for all people then the look up, and not to men."

CHEST SURVEY IN VANCOUVER

L. A. Atkinson, chairman of the board of directors of the British Columbia Tuberculosis Society, the provincial Christmas Seal organization, has announced a grant of approximately $15,000 towards a mass X-ray survey in Vancouver's east end.

A similar survey last year discovered over 40 new cases of tuberculosis in addition to a number of other chest conditions including lung cancer and heart disease.

MORE ABOUT FIRE CONTROL

the five-gallon cans of foam would cost $112.40 and each can of foam $22.75.

Council decided that it was not the responsibility of the municipality to provide fire-fighting equipment for private airfields. They pointed out that in a few years there may be several such fields and it would not be right to ask the taxpayers to pay for fire-fighting equipment for private use.

Butler Brothers are to be asked to provide their own fire-fighting equipment.

Discussion later was turned to the possibility of a car catching on fire and that the department still would have no means of fighting the fire. The matter was tabled to be given further consideration.

Municipal Workers Don't Want To Use Idiot's Stick

Councillor Ray Lamont brought to the attention of Central Saanich council that Mr. Bernard on Puckle Road had asked that a ditch be put in front of his property.

Reeve H. R. Brown said that he was in favor of putting a ditch in front of Mr. Bernard's property if he gave the municipality 15 feet of his property adjoining the road and cleared the land of brush similar to the adjoining land.

Councillor Lamont objected to this and said that it was not fair to ask a man to give 15 feet of his land adjoining the road and still have to clear the brush. It was his opinion that if Mr. Bernard gave the land it should be sufficient. Councillor Lamont went on further to say that a ditch existed before the municipality decided to widen the road and one should be provided now. He pointed out that the only way a ditch could be put in now around the telephone poles would be with men digging with shovels. But you can't get members of the municipality to use an "idiot's stick" now. Council decided to go to the location on Saturday morning and look over the site.

AT LAST!

SALE of village property to the provincial government has been approved at last by the minister of highways, Hon. Philip Gaglardi. After negotiations extending over several months the province agreed to the value set on the land by the village and will shortly commence the construction of a new parking area to serve the projected provincial ferry. A new highway along Ocean Avenue will be built and maintained by the provincial government as well.

The terms of sale will always reflect credit on the village council which has remained steadfast in its assessment of the property's value. At the head of the line stands Dr. C. H. Hemmings, the chairman of the village council and a man who has devoted many hours of work and thought to the terms of the sale now announced.

Many a lesser man might have given in when the government dictated its terms. Dr. Hemmings simply stood by his guns and budged not an inch. His determination to protect ratepayers from any kind of exploitation, even at the hands of a senior government is indicative of his concern for the welfare of the village.

There is another aspect to the matter which many village ratepayers must find puzzling. Why did the province hold out so long? If the provincial government has agreed that the village was in the right, then the government must have been, in fact, seeking to make a sharp bargain at the expense of the community. If this is not the case, then that same government has agreed to a transaction whose terms are an imposition on the ratepayers of the province. We may take our choice of conclusions.

CONVENTION CENTRE

SIDNEY has made an unexpected bid this year as a centre for conventions. Last week-end saw nearly 1,000 people gather at SANSCHA Hall to take part in the convention of Jehovah's Witnesses. At the end of the month teachers from all parts of Vancouver Island will gather at the same location for the social aspect of their annual convention.

The appeal of the community is undoubtedly the size and convenience of SANSCHA Hall. In addition, members of the community hall association here have undertaken to furnish refreshments for the month-end gathering, thereby adding to the appeal of the facilities here at the same time as an increased source of revenue is gained for the hall funds.

Provincial attention turned to Sidney last fall when a dog show was staged here because no facilities equal in size and scope were available elsewhere.

There was a major problem facing attendants at that function. The surrounds of the hall were in a pitiful condition as mud was churned up to lie atop of the mud already well-established there.

Today the same condition is threatening. It would be unfortunate if visitors from other communities were repelled from this district by the conditions prevailing in one small section of the community, but it is unlikely that any distinction will be gained here while visitors arrive in the hall as if they had been fighting a winter war in some unfortunate section of the recent European theatre.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

SHAKESPEARE satisfied himself and thousands of playgoers that a name held but little distinction. Nevertheless, the very fact that only a small fraction of the population changes names for legitimate reasons suggests that the average man does, in fact, become attached to the name which is familiar.

A current drive for renaming of streets and avenues has been hailed in some quarters and condemned in others. There may be a logical justification for requiring Central Saanich and Sidney councils to change the names of certain streets. It is not easy to be convinced that the reason is fully explained.

While we cannot endorse the claims of many residents of the community in their entirety, it is strange to see the municipal councils so readily leaning over towards the pleas of outside groups while ignoring the pleas of their own electors. Let us not leap too joyously into this new craze for renaming streets.

THE COMMUNITY ITSELF

ALMOST 11 years ago a small group of residents of the Sidney and North Saanich area assembled in a Sidney merchant's office and heard a plan for the establishment of a Credit Union to serve the residents of Saanich Peninsula. This week they are marking the internationally celebrated Credit Union Day and taking a gratified glance back over a decade.

The Saanich Peninsula Credit Union has never had occasion to look back or to hesitate in its progress. A co-operative loan group, it is based on the principle which was established a century ago in eastern Canada and which has extended all over the world.

It is not the only Credit Union in this territory, but it is among the most successful and it has made the most impressive progress.

The extent of its operations today indicates that a large cross section of Saanich Peninsula has good reason to be grateful to the few men who gathered together a decade ago.

Letters To The Editor

STREET NAMES

Editor, Review,

It surprises me that the village council ever considered the request of the postal authorities to change the street names in Sidney. I would have expected our council to have written a good still letter back telling them Sidney street names are here to stay and whom do they think they are, anyway?

Take "Henry Ave., Sidney, B.C." It is a perfectly clear address, and could not be confused with any other. Besides, it is sacred to the name of the late Henry Bredlow and is situated on what was once his property. Changing its name is like knocking over his tombstone. I take exception to the new names chosen, also. Applegarth, Arbourfield and Aeneas all begin with an "A", all have three syllables and are too big a mouthful to go with avenue. Nobody will ever remember with how to spell "Arbourfield" with an "or" or "our", with an "el" or an "ie", and it will be interesting to see what the telephone directory does with it.

Why Applegarth? Applegarth was a pioneer labor leader of over 60 years ago. If we wanted a labor leader's name, why not someone and is situated on what was once

Ave. led to an orchard; the area is known as "The Orchards" and the name should be retained.

I hope the council drops the whole idea about changing the street names. A great many people are very angry about it. Better a lot of angry department than a lot of angry villagers.

UNPREDICTABLE

Editor, Review,

May I through this column greet the taxpayers of Sidney. We all know that in the near future there will be village elections taking place. Strange enough, during the period between elections, not a soul turns up at the regular open monthly council meetings where they would hear, for themselves, the arguments and discussions that take place. A reporter may be there, sometimes two. Therefore the taxpayers depend on this source alone for all the information about what is happening in their village affairs. They would be quite astonished if they took the trouble to attend, at the difference in what they hear and what they would read.

Apart from this source there is the rumour-monger, someone who, with a chip on the shoulder or a festering wound, starts whispering on street corners, in stores and around the district generally. These sources are invariably destructive and downright wicked and are impossible to trace. But are they believed? Definitely. The under the cover whisper was about the "bribes" given certain members, particularly my husband the finance commissioner. That is what we are supposed to have retired on at such an early age! Shocking? Oh no, it was lapped up like honey by those of like minds.

Now it is the "Syndicate". A group of people with members of the village commission who have purchased land adjacent to the new ferry compound in order to set up a new commercial centre and so deprive the business people of Sidney of their rightful opportunity of extending there. The Syndicate, of course, had inside knowledge and grabbed the land before anyone else had a chance. (Those wicked commissioners.) Actually, one could say the same thing for all those who purchased or built on the route to Swartz Bay where it was also thought the ferries would go.

When these rumors finally reach their target they have become so firmly planted that even the most reasonable and honest explanation becomes suspect.

If the same amount of mental energy were spent in constructive criticism we might get somewhere. Instead we have this ugly ferment that goes on under the surface and passes for reactions.

Our own reactions to all this is unprintable.

THANKS

Editor, Review,

Through your paper I would like to thank the members of the Pender Island Women's Institute who arranged a meeting for the Save the Children Fund on Friday, Oct. 2, at Port Pender.

I spent this summer touring the S.C.F. centres throughout Europe, Lebanon, British Somaliland and Uganda and was able to tell the people from both Penders of the needs of the children and the work the fund is doing among them.

The collection at the door that evening totalled a wonderful $52.33. Thank you to each and everyone who through donations helped further this worthwhile work.

With grateful thanks, always, to The Review for its part in making meetings and collections known through the year.

HE'S AGIN IT!

Editor, Review,

I went to the Central Saanich water meeting to hear for and against opinions as to the desirability of taking over the now notorious pipeline. Some of us recall the old saw of the Irishman who came over at the turn of the century. Landing in New York, he asked his brothers

SCOUT MEMBERSHIP

UP AGAIN THIS YEAR

With a gain of 17,266 between December 31, 1958 and June 30, 1959, Canada's Boy Scout membership now stands at 273,259. Included in this total are 151,241 Wolf Cubs, 89,182 Boy Scouts, 417 Lone Scouts, 2,171 Sea Scouts, 3,735 Rover Scouts, 191 Rover Sea Scouts and 26,332 volunteer leaders.

if there was a government here. When assured that there was, he said, "I'm agin it". I didn't go to the meeting agin the pipeline. The only preconceived notions I had, would be that I was against the probability of subdividers cashing-in, and against the future prosperity, as such, of Central Saanich.

Come to think, these were not preconceived notions. The first is entirely logical; and fundamental with me. The second, by no means preposterous from my point of view. Who wants to see Central Saanich grow? I regard this district as a present retreat from urbanism.

I know that when we moved here a matter of a couple of years ago, I felt I was an interloper. I may say that I had no choice. My daughters stated: "You've got to get mother out of here". "Here" being the lovely isolated place which was our home.

Pertaining to progress, our well-known friend Bob Derrinberg, from whom we got the land, looked in on us when a couple of land-clearing machines were working. After listening to the hellish clatter for a very short time, he said, "If this is progress you can have it". Had he stayed to hear my comment, it would have been, "I quite agree! But who are we two against so many?" Quoting Shaw of course.

Now the pipe-line. Let us forget the dollar bargain. It is easy for me to say that. Having had no money for some considerable time. I pass up many things. As I and others see the question, residents of the municipality do or do not want water.

If it were otherwise, there would not be enough callous selfishness to deprive them of the opportunity. Such being the case, and that we grow in grace rather than in number, let us pass up a bargain that may not be a bargain.

If the pipe-time of this quality as other war-time stuff, it is worth little more than the dollar proposed purchase price. On evidence, I shall work against the whole thing.

There was a lady at the meeting who spoke eloquently for the scheme in its entirety.

I did not applaud, though I venture to state that I admire her more than did some of the many. But this is not a matter of emotion.

We who are against are obligated to present our views as best we are able. If this means opposition, we must come to decisive vote. I felt proponents at the meeting presented a good case as they saw it. However, I see no sense in the municipality going into the water business. Where will taxes be with a big repair bill to pay? I may be dumb

Genesis 1:1.

How many times have you begun something?

How many times have you begun something that which you began and could stand back and say:

"There is a good job well done?" Or

"I can only say: 'Well—it's finished'."

The big question is, how was it begun?

Here we read the words: "In the beginning God created . . ."

Then following in the chapter are six references to the fact it was very good. What a difference to what man can accomplish!

The difference lies in the abilities, yet God is willing to share His gifts of power and wisdom with man. He has sent His Son to redeem man and through man accepts that redemption falls heir to these gracious gifts from God.

The question then is—when we begin anything do we call on God and His ability to help us after we know that it is His will for us or do we just ignore Him and trust ourselves?

It is my view that our council should publish all the facts concerning the proposed water system to serve that part of Central Saanich which is not now being serviced by the Brentwood Water District.

This information should be mailed to all Central Saanich ratepayers owning property in the proposed water improvement area and therefore entitled to vote on it whether

Last Rites For Former Review Man

The death occurred in Rest Haven hospital on Thursday morning of Arthur Byford, valued member of the typographical staff of The Review since 1951. His passing followed a lingering illness.

The deceased was born in London, England, serving an apprenticeship as a printer in that city. He migrated to Canada and resided in Winnipeg prior to joining the Canadian army in the First World War. He saw long overseas service in the trenches.

On his return to Canada he worked at his trade for many years with the Winnipeg Free Press. Later he came west to Vancouver, serving with the Vancouver Province and the News Herald before coming to Sidney in 1951. He was a member of the Victoria local, International Typographical Union.

ACTIVE IN SPORT

In Winnipeg Mr. Byford was a member of the now defunct Winnipeg North End Amateur Athletic Association, an organization which produced many of Canada's greatest athletes. He also assisted in the training of some of Canada's leading entries in the British Empire Games of yesteryear. His specialty was track and field work.

The deceased was a long-time member of the Masonic order, having been secretary of Seven Oaks Lodge in Winnipeg and Sidney Lodge No. 143. He was also past patron of St. John's Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, Winnipeg; and a past patron of St. Clair Chapter, Vancouver.

Mr. Byford was an active member of Saanich Peninsula branch of the Canadian Legion; of Peninsula Players and of St. Paul's church choir. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Eva Byford, of 2325 Oakland Ave., Sidney; his daughter, Mrs. R. R. (Mildred) Kirkham of San Bruno, Calif.; and a nephew, Ted Byford of Vancouver.

FUNERAL MONDAY

Largely attended funeral services were conducted from Sands' Funeral Chapel in Sidney on Monday afternoon by Canon F. C. Vaughan-Birch and Rev. C. H. Whitmore. Floral tributes were numerous. Pallbearers were Frank Aldridge, A. Calvert, J.P., A. R. Alexander, B. Denford, E. H. Fishenden and E. J. Scott. Interment followed in Holy Trinity Church cemetery, Patricia Bay.

• As many of our clients know, we are, as a result of our wide experience in servicing virtually every make of Canadian and American TV sets, in a unique position to offer sound advice on your purchase of a new TV or radio set.

• Our experience has shown that one of the most trouble-free Canadian-built TV sets is that manufactured by the Canadian Admiral Corporation.

• We were recently given an opportunity of examining the new 1960 range of Admiral TV sets, and can honestly say that we have never seen such superb construction and perfect results before.

In particular we were extremely impressed by the following features:

• A new wide-angle 23-in. picture tube giving good viewing from well to the side of the set.

• No separate safety glass to get dirty and collect dust... the tinted glass is sealed right on to the picture tube, cutting glare and giving sharper pictures.

• All controls are on the front and at the top.

• There is a Horizontal chassis and power transformer for cooler, safer operation.

• There are 20,000 volts on the picture tube, instead of the usual 15,000 for a much sharper, clearer picture.

• See these all-new 1960 models in our Sidney showroom and remember that we will trade-in your old 21-in. set and offer convenient Purchase Terms if desired.

Old Beaver Point School Scene Of Harvest Service

By WINNIE WATMOUGH

Sunday, Oct. 11 an afternoon harvest festival service was held in the old Beaver Point schoolhouse, on Salt Spring Island, with Archdeacon G. H. Holmes officiating.

About 30 people gathered in the old building which was decorated with flowers, vines and vegetables, tastefully arranged on walls, tables, windows and ledges of the old blackboards.

With Mrs. V. Best at the organ and the four choir girls in their gowns seated in the front the lovely service was truly something to be privileged to attend. The choir girls were Edythe Russel, Marylyn Parsons, Denise Frederick and Heather Warren. The congregation joined in the singing of the hymns. Miss Freda Baker, of Vancouver, sang a solo, "Fairest Jesus".

The old wood heater with the cheery flames showing through its isinglass door gave out a comforting heat and as the daylight was near ending, gas lights were lit. Slatted benches with comfortable backs provided seating.

Opening the service, Archdeacon Holmes spoke of the school building being the only little red schoolhouse left on the island in any usable state. Having just returned from a 50-year reunion gathering of the Saskatchewan University he attended in his youth, he spoke of the many changes which had taken place there over the 50 years.

He included a description of the methods used in the construction of sod shacks in the early days by the settlers. On Salt Spring Island it was log cabins.

After the service, as we descended the worn wooden steps, I almost expected to hear youthful voices across the old grass and weed-grown playground. The old building seemed in a fairly good state of preservation. The blackboards remain, but the desks are gone, replaced by the slatted benches (not new). A picture of Queen Elizabeth and King George hung on the wall.

Inquiring about, I learned a little of the history of the old school. I was told it was built by Samuel Beddis, an early pioneer of Salt Spring, assisted by his son, Charles, around 1884. At the time it closed down, July 7, 1951, it was the oldest school in use in B.C. The school was located on five acres. Through representations made by Don Fraser and perhaps others to the then minister of education, Hon. W. T. Straith, the property was transferred to the 35 acres of park and the whole now comprises a class C park, containing the old school building and community hall.

The old school site was reserved for communal purposes of the Beaver Point community and the island as a whole. From that time the old building was open for religious services by all denominations. Mr. Fraser, to whom I am indebted for this information, feels, and I am sure a lot of us as well, this historical old property should be preserved by the Historical Sites Society for the generations that will follow.

I was informed that a Miss Jackson was the first teacher and Miss Penrose, now Mrs. Evan McMillan, the last. One of Victoria's early settlers, James Monk, also taught. He farmed at Beaver Point a number of years.

Many residents of Beaver Point, among them Henry and Alfred Ruckle, went to school in the little red schoolhouse, many grew up to raise their families and send them to the same school. The old building holds many fond memories for the old residents of Beaver Point and others on the island.

I think it has done us all good to attend that wonderful service in the old historic building while Archdeacon Holmes brought to our attention more clearly the facts we take for granted nowadays; the many blessings we share with never, perhaps, a thought of how it all comes about.

LAST RITES FOR REV. F. FORSTER IN VICTORIA

Funeral services were held in Centennial United Church, Victoria, Tuesday afternoon for Rev. Frederick Forster, who passed away there October 7, at the age of 74 years. Rev. Dr. R. McElroy Thompson, Rev. A. I. Avery and Rev. Dr. F. E. H. James officiated.

The late Rev. Forster was well known on Salt Spring Island, having served nearly three years for the United Church here. He left for Victoria about three years ago. Mr. Forster came here from the prairies where he served for over 40 years with the Methodist Church and United Church of Canada in Alberta. He was a member of Lodge No. 76, A.F. and A.M., Bashaw, Alberta. He leaves his wife, May, at the residence; four sons, David of Victoria, Arnold and Arthur of Edmonton, and Robert of Calgary; 11 grandchildren, two sisters, and two brothers in England.

TEENAGERS HOLD DANCE

About 75 teenagers enjoyed a dance in Mahon hall, Ganges, last Friday evening. During the week a club was formed to sponsor the dances, with officers including Pat Douglas, president; Christa Morrison, secretary, and Marguerite Gear, treasurer. Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Morrison were assisted in supervising the dance by Constable H. Bonner.

ASSASSINATION OF LEADER

Shocked Letter From Japan

By MADELEINE TILL

With the rest of the world I was shocked to hear of the assassination and subsequent death of Ceylon's Prime Minister, Mr. Bandaranaike. It is not yet known whether the crime was committed for personal or political reasons. Ironically, he was struck down by a Buddhist priest, a man of his own race and religion. Whatever the reasons were, they must have been overwhelming to compel a Buddhist, who is not supposed to deprive even the smallest insect of life, to shoot a defenceless man in the sanctity of his own home.

Four Asian countries, no longer under British rule, have lost their leaders by assassination since gaining their independence: Mahatma Gandhi of India, Pakistan's Liaquat Ali Khan, Burma's Premier U. Aung San, together with six members of his cabinet, and now Mr. Bandaranaike of Ceylon.

SINHALESE SQUIRE

No came of a wealthy, aristocratic Sinhalese family. His father, the counterpart of an English squire, lived on his country estate outside Colombo, rode in Routon Row in London, hobnobbed with the mighty and was a friend of Queen Victoria.

The late Prime Minister went to Oxford and was called to the Bar in England. However, it was politics and not law which was to be his occupation in life. He became a Buddhist and joined with those who fought for Ceylon's political emancipation. In 1952 he created his own Sri Lanka Freedom Party.

In 1956 he formed a coalition with a group of parties to fight the powerful United National Party led by Sir John Kotelawala, Ceylon's third Prime Minister. The coalition was returned in a crushing victory which almost wiped out the U.N.P.

The new Prime Minister, Mr. Bandaranaike, sprung from the middle classes. One-time schoolmaster in Galle, he had to choose between teaching and politics and decided on the latter. He is described as a man of the people, of simple tastes, he wears the national dress and always travels third-class in order to be in contact with the masses and to keep his finger on their political pulse.

NOT KNIT TOGETHER

Ceylon is a difficult country to govern. There is no Ceylonese nation sufficiently knit together, as the English, Scots and the Welsh form one British nation. It is a land of different communities, the Sinhalese, the Tamils, the Muslims and the Burghers, who are the offspring of mixed marriages between the

The Galiano Chamber of Commerce held the annual dinner at the hall on Wednesday, Oct. 7.

St. Margaret's Guild catered for the dinner. J. P. Hume was general convener and Mrs. Stanley Page was responsible for the lovely table decorations. Guests of honor were J. S. Gardner, district manager of the B.C. Power Commission, from Duncan, and F. Dawson of the commission, from Nanaimo.

Following dinner Mr. Gardner gave a talk on power development, accompanied by some films.

Coffee and cookies were served by the guild members.

GENTLEMEN'S DINNER WELL RECEIVED

Saturna community hall on Saturday, Oct. 10, was the scene of a happy occasion, the annual dinner the "Gentlemen of Saturna" put on for the ladies. Guests agreed that this year was the best yet. The punch served at 6 p.m. gave a chance to circulate and chat before partaking of the buffet dinner.

The buffet table was laid out with cold meats of all kinds, salads, relishes and rolls. The tables were beautifully decorated with cut flowers and autumn leaves. Dessert was served at the table by attentive waiters.

Walter Warlow, president of the community club, made a short speech of welcome to the ladies and their escorts which was replied to by Mrs. J. Yates, president of the Saturna Women's Service Club.

Contests for the ladies were entertaining and the evening wound up with a dance, music being supplied by Mrs. B. Begon and Mrs. E. Post taking turns at the piano, Mr. Warlow, violin, and S. Sargeant on the drums.

Bridge Parties Planned For Winter Months

St. Mark's Chancel Guild are again sponsoring the very popular bridge games during the winter season.

First game was held in the Anglican parish hall at Ganges last Friday evening and drew a good attendance. It is hoped there will be 10 tables in play next game, which will be October 23. Anyone interested may contact Mrs. J. Sturdy. Partners play together throughout the series but with different couples every time, and at the end of the games prizes are given for the top three couples. Mrs. C. Springfield is convener of refreshments.

Baby Shower

Mrs. C. Horel was the surprise guest of honor at a baby shower party last Saturday evening, held at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Jameski, Cranberry Road.

Mrs. Philip Fischer, her sister from Victoria, and Mrs. J. Bennett were co-hostesses for the enjoyable evening. A decorated baby basket was filled with gifts, and following their opening, games were played.

tional language, but will they ever be able to dispense with a world language like English? It seems highly unlikely.

The present government has two more years to go, and Mr. Danahanake has pledged himself to carry on the policies of his predecessor. A state of emergency exists and the people have been urged to go about their business as usual. It remains to be seen whether he can steer the ship of state through the precarious waters of racial, religious and linguistic differences, whether he can stem the tide of unemployment and control the strikes which are crippling the country's trade.

Ceylon is going through a critical period in its history. It will take strong, courageous statesmanship to bring order out of near-chaos and to curb the elements which would destroy the democratic way of life.

The L.A. will again cater the annual Armistice dinner for the local branch of the Legion and will be under the convenship of Mrs. R. W. Bradley. Mrs. H. Minchin will be in charge of the annual Poppy Day tag.

Mrs. J. Sturdy has undertaken to organize the Canadian National Institute for the Blind tag day, which has been held on the island each fall for a number of years.

The Legion have sponsored a local soccer team and arrangements have been made for seven games to be played during the season. The L.A. was requested to cater for the visiting soccer team on these occasions and Mrs. W. Jackson consented to be in charge of arrangements.

It was decided that, in view of the many projects listed above, that instead of holding a fund raising event each member would be asked to contribute $1.

The Monster That Belches

Produces Snow-white Paper

By BEA HAMILTON

It would be next to impossible to write a coherent story about what hitherto has been a monster in the distance that belched, shall we say, certain odoriferous smells that were far from pleasant. But that was my impression of the Crofton Pulp Mill—up to now.

Yesterday (Sunday) I, with several others from Salt Spring, Mr. and Mrs. F. Grant, and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Ashlee of Ganges, were honored to be guests of the Canadian Women's Press Club at their meeting, and were invited with them to tour the pulp mills, by the B.C. Forest Products Co. and to have tea afterwards, as the company's guests, which we did and enjoyed thoroughly.

It is unbelievable what goes on inside the pulp mill. Our guide, Don (the only name we knew him by) showed a dozen of us—all wearing hard hats for safety—through the first building, where the logs started on their way to destruction, and our guide told us it would be noisy! It was! But not surprising when one encountered the huge steel monsters with teeth and clamps and chains and wheels and rollers. AND water, plain, ordinary water! The water is used to skin, or bark, the logs. A powerful jet of water comes from a moving pipe and literally washes away the bark of the logs as if it was paper. Steel teeth or clamps roll the log under the pouring jets of water and swoosh—away goes the bark, and the log rolls on to the next process, while another takes its place and so on.

The skinned logs glide into cutters, or so it seemed to me—as I couldn't ask questions for the noise. We watched a lone barker push a truculent log into place as it kicked over the traces to meet a huge circular saw (it was too long) and was cut into the right length.

We went to the next operation, where we couldn't see but definitely heard the log being chopped into pieces inside a huge machine that was deafening in sound. From then on we followed from building to building, and saw the gradual processing of the wood until we looked into great vats of goosy looking matter that our guide said resembled an Irish stew.

We went to other vats until we looked upon a pre white mixture which this time resembled cream of wheat porridge. From this came the great sheets of soft thick white and very wet pulpy substance that was soon rolled and processed in various ways into beautiful white sheets of parchment-like paper, bleached white. These were baled into 500-pound bails ready to be shipped to all parts of the world.

All this was only a part of our educational stroll through the mill—we climbed up and down steps, went to the top in the elevator and came down again; we saw white-hot fires turning innocent-looking stones into chemicals. A tremendous furnace with an open "fire-place" with yellow-white flames where limestone was turned into quick-lime and many other chemicals were put through scientific processes. Most of the work at the mill is done by push-button control. It appears that a handful of men control it all in this huge plant.

The pulp mill operates night and day and though they have a deodorizing machine which naturalizes some of the fumes, there is a very definite "bad cabbage-and fishy" smell that we all get a whiff of at times.

The plant uses three million gallons of water a day! Water is everywhere in the mills, which is a great help in keeping the place moderately fresh.

All the work and processing, the vast number of trees cut up, the planning and scientific thought behind it all, just because the everyday consumer wants paper or building material, and comforts in the home.

It's marvellous and well worthwhile to be allowed to visit such an industry. Never mind how little can be understood of the processing and construction, it gives a sense of appreciation for every little thing one buys. For behind every article there is industry and construction, scientific knowledge and labor.

To top off a wonderful experience at the mill, with thanks to those who allowed the visit, we just had they live in Victoria, Calgary, or beyond. This has so far not been done. Also, after this information has been clearly published, ample time should then be allowed for the voters to discuss and analyze the pros and cons before the day arrives for them to record their votes.

Further the voters owning property in this proposed water area should not have "package deals" placed before them whereby they are faced with a take-it-or-leave-it situation. This prevents them from exercising their legitimate rights to select the proposals they wish to support. The latest "package" combination proposal submitted by our council can easily be separated into two separate proposals. Whilst they are associated they can still be separated for approval purposes.

The proposals I suggest are:

(a) Do you authorize the council to accept the present Elk Lake Water Supply System as offered by the Dominion government to the municipal government of Central Saanich, for a token payment of $1.00?

(b) Should the council be authorized to borrow $83,000 on behalf of the proposed water improvement area to build a balancing tank on Mount Newton for this water system and provide certain associated equipment?

These are two separate clear-cut issues which if voted on separately would get a fair expression of our ratepayers wishes.

This is the only fair and just way of dealing with the situation.

Any attempt by our council to combine these proposals, when they are voted upon, would be tantamount to denying the voters their rights of selection in this matter.

This water issue has not yet been fully clarified regarding all the conditions and obligations for the information of the voters and as the regular municipal election in December next is so near now it would not justify the considerable expense to our taxpayers for the holding of a special plebiscite vote in November as has been suggested. The offer of the Dominion government does not expire until the end of December next, according to a statement made at a recent council meeting, so this matter could be voted on at the December municipal election at very little extra expense to our taxpayers. Therefore I believe that this would be the proper time to vote on these water proposals. In the meantime the matter can be fully discussed both publicly and privately by the taxpayers in the area concerned for the purpose of clarifying all the factual information. In this way the voter will be in a better position to reach a decision when the voting takes place.

According to Sect. 617 of the Municipal Act those parts of our municipality which form the proposed water improvement area would be a separate and financially watertight set-up although it would be operated as a municipal department. Thereby the areas obtaining the water service would be entirely responsible to directly meet the entire costs of providing the water service. In consequence the present Brentwood Water District would not be obligated to pay any of the costs of other water improvement areas in our municipality. This would cover the engineer's bill for professional services, the entire cost of building a balancing tank, etc., even if originally financed by a municipal loan. This is why the Municipal Act con-

SEEK AID OF RADIO HAMS

Scouts across Canada, are seeking the co-operation of amateur radio station operators to enable them to participate in the Second Jamboree-on-the-Air from October 23 to 25. Sponsored by the Boy Scouts International Bureau in Ottawa, the Jamboree-on-the-Air is a meeting of Scouts via the amateur radio air waves. QSL cards will be sent to all Scouts contacting the International Bureau's specially-licensed amateur short wave station in Ottawa, with the call letters "VE3JAM", during the jamboree.

Further the council could not syphon off any of the profits from these water department accounts for other municipal expenditures. All profits must be applied to the financing of the water operation and if possible to reducing the charges for supplying the water.

The proposed balancing tank would have a number of immediate advantages such as additional fire protection from extra hydrants but it is not an immediately essential requirement. It will not doubt become a highly desirable addition when the need is positively established to serve the proposed water improvement areas when they are organized and the users properly signed up for the service.

The fact that the Dominion and provincial governments will pay at least 75 per cent of the labor bill between December and May next should cause those who are interested in getting the water service into operation to get really busy so as to justify the voters approval of building the balancing tank at next December's election.

In order to try and obtain all the factual information possible on this municipal water issue I have spent a considerable amount of time discussing it with a variety of highly competent persons both in the parliament buildings and elsewhere. This includes two engineers who have no financial interest in our water project. Unfortunately they cannot be named as they refuse to be dragged into the acrimonious discussions which seem to plague Central Saanich municipal politics.

The information which I am collecting will be available to you for publication in an early issue of The Review. From the information which I already have it clearly appears to me that it would be good advantage of the Dominion government municipal business to, at least, take ment's offer. Regardless of my proposal views I will make every endeavor to present a fair picture of the various factors involved in the acquisition of this water system.

PIONEERS PROTEST

Editor, Review,

Sir: In the October 7 issue of The Review, it was stated that the Sidney Village Commissioners after "careful thought" had submitted to the Postal Authorities, new names for various old streets in the village.

Realizing the commissioners, other than Mr. Boshier, are comparatively new-comers to Sidney, we feel that they have not considered the origin of these street names, or the moral rights involved in this matter.

Pioneer settlers in this area, some who donated part of their land for the townsite of Sidney, named these streets. North Saanich abounds with roads named by or for pioneers. In time are authorities going to change

Geo. Littlejohn, Third St., is a patient in Rest Haven hospital.

These names also, because they conflict with names in Victoria, e.g. John, Munro, Beacon, Mills and so on.

John Brethour named Orchard and Oakland Avenues. The commissioners have chosen Oakdene and Apple-garth. Henry Ave. was "Henry's Lane" long before there was a Sidney. It bordered Henry Brethour's property. It has now been elevated to a more aristocratic title — Elmdale (no elms).

Samuel Roberts owned from the Brethour border at King's Road, including Queen's Ave., Admirals Road East and West, and on to Roberts Point. These roads were named by the late pioneer. They are now to be known as Regal, Sovereign, Arbourfield and Clarendon.

As for the Postal Authorities, surely they can differentiate between mail addressed to Sidney and that addressed to Victoria. Perhaps they contemplate the day when Sidney is no more, and sub-stations and door-to-door postal service from Victoria is initiated.

Although we are not against progress, we feel that the Sidney Village Commissioners could use their talents and energy in far more productive ways, than thinking up new names. Perhaps Victoria will compromise and change theirs.

CHURCH SUPPER FOR FAMILIES AT SCHOOL

Ladies of the Seventh-day Adventist church served a Thanksgiving supper for their families in their church school auditorium on Bowerbank Road, Sunday evening, Oct. 11. There were just over 100 persons present, including many children and young people.

Following the supper, there was a short program of stories, poems, instrumental and vocal music, all in harmony with the spirit of thanksgiving. H. D. Goertzen directed the program, while those taking part included Dianne Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. White, Rasmussen Jensen, Mrs. A. G. Rodgers and Anita, Pastor and Mrs. G. Hochstetter, Lloyd Hanson, Carol Lorensen and Mrs. N. Tkachuk.

To conclude the program LeRoy Kuhn conducted a sing-song of choruses in which all took part. An offering was received to help defray the expense of improving the school playground. A two-acre field has been recently worked, graded, and planted with a "playgreen" lawn mixture.

REPORT FROM VICTORIA

by JOHN D. T. TISDALE, M.L.A.

The last session I requested that the government give serious consideration to the importance of a four-lane highway from Victoria to Patricia Bay. At that time I gave facts and figures on the increase in traffic volume and car population from 1953 to 1958. The press must have considered it important for they gave it front page coverage. Now some seven months later it becomes top line material at a Saanich Conservative meeting by Bob Patch.

J. D. Tisdale

The question that puzzles me is, where was his voice when the subject was hot. If he is going to ask for the same things that a Social Credit member proposes, then let's not oppose each other. Mr. Patch, but come on in, Bob, and join the crowd of Social Crediters that used to be Liberals, C.C.F. and Conservatives like yourself and who, long ago, gave up the political promising parties for positive performance through Social Credit.

Maybe the premier and Mr. Gagliardi don't agree with the suggestion for the need of a four-lane highway to Patricia Bay just yet, and it may take some persuading, but of this I feel sure that when it is built, it will be a Social Credit government that builds it.

Finally, on the subject of persuasion, Social Crediters respect and appreciate the civil servants and the hard working cabinet, but we do not subscribe to government rule solely by either, no matter how good it might be. We subscribe to the principle, that it is the duty of government to bring to the people the results they desire from the management of their affairs. Every Social Crediter agrees to this principle when he takes out a membership.

The recent people's acceptance of the P.G.E. bonds on a strictly provincial basis is a prime example of this principle, and appropos in the 1957 session I made a strong plea for this type of financing for both Crown-owned corporations. At that time I was informed that it was too soon as the P.G.E., under new management and with a gloomy past, had not arrived at a place of strength, but it would need to be extended and further prove itself

COUNCIL'S APOLOGIA FOR NEW NAMES

Sidney village council has prepared an apologia to explain the procedure regarding changing of street names. The statement is published, in full, below:

Owing to the confusion that has arisen regarding street names, a committee, formed for the purpose of solving the problem, has suggested, after long consideration, that names which have been duplicated be changed. These suggested changes have been divided between the various municipalities, and Sidney has been requested to alter the names of six of its avenues.

These alterations are needed to lessen the confusion in postal services caused by the elimination of for public acceptability. The minister of finance was probably right, as it has shown.

While on financial matters many people other than Social Crediters are expressing serious concern over the present national financial crisis. It seems to me that it will make very little difference who wins the argument between the prime Minister and Mr. Fleming and the banks as to which is to blame for tight money if in the meantime we lose the war for economic survival.

The structure that our trade and commerce travels on is in danger of breaking down. For some time now many weaknesses have been showing up all too frequently, such as so-called over-production, with its irritating effect of causing governments to subsidize further production. This, in turn, forces the government into deficit financing which means higher taxes to the producer on consumer goods, so eventually the producer is worse off than he was before, by virtue of having to pay for the subsidy and the carrying charges of deficit financing.

A second weakness is the evidence of unemployment in the presence of the greatest demand for consumer goods that this country has ever witnessed, which is further illustrated by the fact we have also the highest inflation of our time. Consumer demand is so strong that there isn't enough money to finance expansion and production, not to mention the shortage of purchasing power on the domestic front, which added up to over $2 billion in charge accounts in 1958. We have the materials, the know how, and the manpower, but no money, while thousands must live on social dole, and in the same breath we are told there is too much money chasing too few goods.

One can't help but ask the question: If the federal government believes this is necessary in good times, then what will it be like in poor times? It is hard to believe there are some that still support this method of economic "cannibalism" as being orthodox. The Beatniks would call it a "Pretty sick cat", and in the meantime the enemies of democratic free enterprise laugh at us in our conundrum. God never intended man to create misery for himself, that was to be the Devil's job, but he's getting far too much help from the way the present financial system is being run.

Social Crediters subscribe to the principle that "that which is desirable and humanly possible can and must be made financially possible."

Many more would accept this principle if we would only eliminate the word "must", but lack a little faith in their fellow man and in their own ability. "For God has given us all things to enjoy".

It is up to Canadians to prove that it can and must be done.

Clothes To Be Sent By W.A.

Monthly meeting of St. John's W.A. was held at Deep Cove on Tuesday, Oct. 6, with 19 members present.

The W.A. lost a faithful member in Miss W. Brown who moved to Victoria in September. A farewell tea was held for her on Saturday, Sept. 12, at the home of Mrs. A. Watts, by the W.A., and she was presented with a bunch as a memento of St. John's W.A.

Mrs. J. Gardner gave an account of missionary work in Korea and China. It was agreed to start a collection of clothes, etc., to be sent as soon as possible to these needy areas.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. K. Dentle and Mrs. D. Dunlop after the meeting was adjourned.

French Actor In Local Production

This comedy will take place at the Sidney elementary school on October 23 and 24 at 8.15 p.m.

Mr. Plaschko appeared with the Sidney group last spring in the musical play, "Suspicion", which was entered in the Victoria Drama Festival.

"Space Travel" Theme Brentwood P.T.A.

Dr. R. M. Petrie, director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory will speak and show slides on Space Travel at the Brentwood P.T.A. meeting, Wednesday, Oct. 21. The meeting will be held in the Brentwood elementary school at 8 p.m. and all interested are invited to attend.

The council believes that a consideration of these facts warrants joining the other municipalities in conforming with the committee's request.

how much are you really paying for "FREE" hot water?

Let's face it—hot water is never free. If you're heating water with old-fashioned coils in your furnace or stove, your fuel bills are higher than they should be. What's more, you're losing costly heat through that inefficient uninsulated water tank! With a modern, automatic storage heater, you pay only for the hot water you use; once it's heated the insulated tank keeps it hot. The cost of providing automatic hot water for an average family is a few cents a day per person. And what a convenience to have all the hot water you want—simply by turning a tap!

A plentiful supply of hot water from an automatic electric storage water heater is the greatest blessing in the home.

Credit Union Shows Impressive Gains During Past 11 Years

Message From Prime Minister

On the occasion of Credit Union Day throughout the world, I am pleased to add my tribute to the splendid endeavors of the credit union movement.

It is noteworthy that Canadians still have the highest percentage by population of credit union membership, which is evidence of the benefits which Canadians recognize can be derived therefrom.

My sincere good wishes to all for the future and for your efforts to build better lives in a greater and growing Canada.

—JOHN DIEFENBAKER.

Small Group Of Men And Idea Set Pattern

It was in the fall of 1948 that a group of residents of Sidney gathered to discuss the establishment of a credit union in the community. Few of those pioneers of the organization had any great knowledge of what it might entail. They had studied the system which envisages a form of savings and loan bank built on a co-operative basis.

With a handful of members the Saanich Peninsula Credit Union came into being. Its offices were located in the Beacon Ave. store of Alexander-Gane and Alan Alexander served as its first treasurer.

At the same time, R. N. Shanks, who lent his name to the group for many years was its first president. The following year saw Mr. Alexander assume the duties of president and shortly afterwards Mr. Shanks assumed the office of treasurer, administering the funds from his Beacon Ave. home.

With the steady increase in membership the credit union gained a greater financial support and its funds rose steadily.

MOVES TO THIRD ST.

Several years ago the office was moved from the home of its secretary-treasurer and was set up on Third St., where it remained for many years.

The building on Fourth St. was acquired after an emergency assembly of the directors. It was held for a time until the members approved its reconstruction for the purpose. About the time that this move was under discussion Mr. Shanks withdrew from active employment with the branch and joined the staff of The Review. He was followed by Norman Shillitto, who had previously been serving as president.

Norman Shillitto, assisted by Mrs. R. Tuttle, led the way to the reconstructed modern office accommodation now enjoyed.

From that first discussion until the present day the Saanich Peninsula Credit Union has forged ahead. It has gained steadily in membership and its investments and loans have steadily expanded. Among the innovations introduced during the management of Mr. Shanks was that of a chequing system whereby members could write cheques on their accounts as they would on a bank account.

RECORD FIGURES

At the end of last month the operating figures were not only gratifying to the members, but they were

The Saanich Peninsula Credit Union was reaching the top of its operation. Since its inception it had lent out $707,098, or nearly three-quarters of a million. Nearly half a million dollars had been paid on shares during the near-11 years of its operation.

There is nothing mysterious about the system, explained Mr. Shillitto. Members invest their savings in the organization and loans are then made for a multitude of purposes. The operation is simple economics and a close control is maintained by

Goat Breeders Discuss Improvements

Lower Vancouver Island branch of the B.C. Goat Breeders' Association met on September 27 in the Strawberry Vale Institute hall. Members discussed suggested improvements in the goat sections in the autumn fairs.

E. Smart, club president, gave the trophies won by exhibitors in the goat section at the recent Saanich Fair to the prizewinners. B.C. Goat Breeders' trophy for best doe in show went to Mrs. E. Smart, and also the new Harvey challenge trophy for best purebred Saanen herd. T. Money received the Jean Harvey trophy for best purebred Toggenberg herd. The junior B.C. Goat Breeders' cup for best kid doe in show went to a 4-H member, Rhodena Cronk. It is the first time this cup has ever been captured by a junior. Following the presentations, Rhodena Cronk gave a talk on how she raised her prize kid.

The second half of the afternoon was given over to a social and shower to honor a bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Galbraith (nee Esther Smith) of 6501 West Saanich Road. Paul Howe, president of the Saanich 4-H Goat Club gave Mrs. Galbraith the gift of the 4-H members, a beautiful rose bowl, in appreciation of the fine work she has done in past years in helping the junior goatkeepers. Mrs. E. Smart brought forth a gayly decorated box filled with gifts from the adult members. Jean Money gave the recent bride a lovely corsage and three of the older 4-H girls, Rose Couling, Heather Thomas and Rose Smart, served the refreshments, highlight of which was a gay cake decorated with wedding bells, which the bride was called upon to cut. At the close of the social, Mr. Galbraith, who had met the goatkeepers for the first time, congratulated the club on their excellent meeting, and expressed the appreciation of his wife and himself for such a delightful reception in their honor.

The Barber Pole—Where Did Its Stripes Come From?

By DORIS LEEDHAM HOBBS.

As I drove through the city the other night I became aware, among all the twinkling lights, of many revolving red and white, or red, white and blue barbers' poles, and as I neared home I noticed that one barber at Royal Oak has a small sign of diagonal red and white stripes.

Then too, we have this question of the price of haircuts, in the daily paper, and our attention is drawn to one of the oldest trades or professions, that of the barber. Barbers have been known to perform their trade since at least the third century B.C. in Rome, and in our Bible in the Old Testament many references were made to the barber's razor.

In the early 17th century in England the barber's sign was a wooden head, a poll on a pole, then came the pole itself as a sort of burlesque of "poll", a head.

Then these wielders of the knife, were known as barber-surgeons, because they combined, shaving and hair cutting with the ancient practice of blood-letting or "cupping" which was used for a remedy in many diseases.

A London company was formed as far back as the reign of Edward IV.

in 1461 by these barber-surgeons, but in the reign of Henry VIII. this was dissolved, and in 1540, we read of the decree, "No person using shaving or barbering in London, shall occupy (perform) any surgery, letting of blood, or other matter, except for the drawing of teeth". So we see that the barbers were also the forerunners of dentists.

Now for the pole. This has been the barber's sign since the divorce of the surgeons and the barbers, but, the colors have the old significance. The pole was a staff held in the hand by the man who was to be bled, the white "fillet" or bandage twisted round the pole was the material used to bind up the wound. Now, as veins (blue) were those vessels incised, the barber surgeons were careful not to cut an artery (red). So we get the blue and red color on many barber's poles with the twisted white fillet.

As objects of antique interest there are also barber's plates or basins which resemble a large old-fashioned soup plate with a semi-circular notch in the rim. This used to fit the arm of the patient and collect the blood. These were often of shiny metal and used as a sign to hang outside the barber's shop.

Other eye-catching provisions in the design are the large, well-lighted living room which can be shut off from the dining room by a wooden accordion door; the generous kitchen with space for a washer and dryer; the screened flagstone porch which provides a covered walk between the kitchen and garage and the large coat closet with built-in table adjoining the front entrance. The basement is partitioned into four sections allowing for furnace and laundry rooms as well as a large games room and storage area.

The total floor area is 1,662 square feet and the exterior dimensions are 58 feet by 47 feet. Working drawings for the house, known as Design 804, may be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing at minimum cost.

GALA DAY FOR SYMPHONY

WHEN SEASON OPENS IN VICTORIA

By RALPH KENDALL

An almost capacity audience, including a liberal sprinkling of distinguished guests, graced the auditorium of the Royal Theatre to herald the opening of the 1959-60 season of the Victoria Symphony Society on Monday last.

In a written message, included among the program notes, Society President Jack Barraclough welcomed the audience to what he thought might be the most important season of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra's existence. "There was a notable change 11 years ago when we left infancy behind and, in the hands of Mr. Gruber headed slowly towards a successful future."

Mr. Barraclough goes on to say, "It would be most presumptuous of us to claim maturity for our orchestra at this time. I am sure, however, that we can be proud of the respectable heights to which they have climbed and, of course, we must insist on continued improvement in the future."

That there exists some outside appreciation of the talents of the musicians is evidenced by the admission that many players have been lost to orchestras in Toronto, Ottawa and Vancouver and this state of affairs would appear to substantiate the point-of-view that sometime, in the not too distant future, the musicians would have to be placed on a full-time professional footing to give due recognition to their artistry.

NOW IS THE TIME

Upon the basis of Monday's concert I would say that that time is now. The performances were those of a well-drilled ensemble working under the careful guidance of Mr. Gruber. The sort of team which could very well work its way to a "major league" if it has the full cohesion of effort necessary to any team wanting to move upward and onward. So cry "Excelsior", Mr. Gruber, and with your baton in place of the banner "with a strange device" lead your musical followers on, and let us hope that Mr. Barraclough and his team may be able to provide the wherewithal to aid your efforts.

Guest violinist Hyman Goodman is a good soloist as well as being an excellent concertmaster (or leader) in spite of the slightly woolly quality of a few of the notes in the closing passages of the Glazounov Violin Concerto in A Minor. Having to play such a difficult piece after leading the ensemble in the Haydn "Military" Symphony, is an undertaking requiring the full mastery of his art. The main work in the concert was the Brahms Symphony No. 1 in C Minor, and this was beautifully rendered.

Among the distinguished guests introduced from the stage during the intermission was the Hon. W. N. Chant, minister of public works, who brought apologies for absence and good wishes from Premier Bennett.

Mr. Chant went on to express appreciation of the value of the orchestra, especially as Victoria is a city which is striving to attain full university status and the cultural presence of such a band of dedicated musicians would be a help in achieving an atmosphere conducive to good scholarship. It was also his hope that a school of music could be set up on the west coast and he thought that Victoria should be the home of such a school.

Not guests introduced from the stage by Mr. Barraclough were: Mayor J. T. Dobson of Duncan; Dr. C. H. Hemmings, chairman of the village council of Sidney; Reeve G. Murdoch of Oak Bay; Reeve G. H. Chatterton of Saanich; Reeve A. C. Wattle of Esquimalt; Reeve C. A. P. Munson of North Cowichan; Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, and the directors of the Victoria Symphony Society.

Other people present included Mrs. Frank Ross, wife of the lieutenant-governor; Miss Ruth McLenn, Lieut. Col. J. C. Allen, Rev. C. R. Janvin and Brigs, and Mrs. Adams.

VARIETY OF FUNCTIONS IS PLANNED

W.A. of St. Paul's United church met in the lower hall of the church on Wednesday, Oct. 7, at 2:30 p.m. Owing to the illness of the president, Mrs. J. D. Butler, the vice-president, Mrs. W. B. Palmer was in the chair and opened the meeting with a short prayer followed by the singing of a hymn.

The devotion was conducted by Mrs. Carl Davie with the Thanksgiving theme, "Count Your Many Blessings". Mrs. L. Wyllie and Mrs. A. Moore were welcomed to the meeting.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. D. C. Dickson and Mrs. R. D. Scott gave the financial report. Both reports were approved as read.

Margaret Douglas circle will have charge of the A.O.U.S. dinner to be held in the Sunday school hall on the fourth Tuesday of October, Mrs. Fergus Reid and Mrs. W. S. Dawson were appointed as a nominations committee to bring in a report of the officers of the W.A. for 1960 at the November meeting.

The W.A. Presbyterian meeting will be held in First United church on October 15 at 10 a.m. Members are urged to bring a box luncheon. Tea will be provided, and all interested ladies are welcome. It was decided to order the United Church calendars as usual, for 1960, to be distributed among the groups.

The meeting unanimously agreed to send $15 to the United Church home for girls in Burnaby, B.C., and $10 to Union College at the University of B.C. Each group of the W.A. was asked to be responsible for a "baby sitter" to look after the small children each Sunday morning while their parents attend church service; each group to take their turn the Sunday they place the flowers in the church.

Mrs. Gordon Smith gave a short missionary report. Several boxes of clothing had been turned in for Korea, also many lovely gifts for the Indian children in the mission hospitals of the United Church in B.C. Medical kits, including hot water bottles are needed for hospitals in the mission fields at home and abroad.

Presbyterian meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church will be held in Brechen United church, Nanaimo, on October 26 at 10 a.m.

All groups reported work was progressing for the coming bazaar on November 28. The Margaret Douglas group reported they have three quilts ready for sale. Twenty members answered the roll call. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction after which a "no-hostess" tea was enjoyed by all present.

OUT OF THE MIXING BOWL

Make Mine A Rich Sundae

BY MURIEL WILSON

October, our "Count Your Blessings" month, and what a lot we have to be thankful for! It is human nature to magnify our troubles and forget about the everyday blessings that each one of us enjoys. Compared to some of the countries of the world, we in this land of plenty and freedom live in Utopia. We waste our lives being outraged because life at times is difficult. A wonderful cure for dissatisfaction is to count our blessings.

My own personal blessings at the moment almost overwhelm me. . . . After almost twenty years away from home and at sea, our Navy son and his family have returned to the home port. This Thanksgiving day with all of our family around us, we have cause for great rejoicing. I am thankful for so many things . . . for my "Better Half" who after having taken me for better or for worse, has patiently and lovingly endured my faults and foibles these many years. I am thankful for my angel-devil grandchildren. For a host of solid and dependable friends and for all the unpredictable and crazy characters that I know and dearly love. I am thankful for all the helpful people around me who are always ready to extend a helpful hand when needed . . . my neighbors, the doctor, the preacher and all the others too numerous to mention. I am thankful for appreciative readers, for newspaper friends and to the printers who put up with my poorly-typed copy.

FREEDOM
I am thankful for freedom . . . freedom to go to church or stay at home as I please, freedom to damn the government or to praise it; freedom to cast my vote. I am thankful for health, which is the essence of a good life, and for the beauty of the world, the sun and rain, for all the bounties of nature. I am thankful that so far cool heads have prevailed over hot heads to keep the cold war from becoming a hot war.

In the lives of most of us the blessings far outnumber the trials and tribulations, so at this Thanksgiving season let us count our blessings and give thanks for the love and care that has been bestowed upon us.

I'M PLAYING IT SAFE . . . I'VE STOCKED UP ON CANADA SAVINGS BONDS

IN THE FALL

The flowers that bloom in the spring tra la

Have to be planted in fall tra la. Isn't it the truth? Just when one's enthusiasm for gardening has completely petered out, when one's interest has dropped to zero . . . along come the bulbs. This time of year I could almost be persuaded by my apartment dwelling friends that apartment life is the best life. Almost but not quite . . . as I hold that brown bulb in my hand and I think about its spring glory. I say "no, not yet."

People you would like to murder . . . the radio announcer who says "Now is the time to think about ordering your Christmas cards." "Get out your list," he says, and "start to think about Christmas." Of course it would be the sensible thing to do, but who wants to be sensible?

No wonder some dogs think they are people . . . now you can buy house coats for dogs. They come in all sizes and colors. The manufacturers tell us that, garbed in a high-fashion house coat, your Fido will be better adjusted and more relaxed. And . . . you have not heard everything yet. There is a dog who has a charge account. If this dog's family are not at home when the ice cream vendor comes around Scamp gets a scoop of ice cream . . . on the cuff. Shades of this "credit age" they'll be supplying him with a credit card next. Quite a handy thing to carry in his house coat pocket.

OVERWEIGHT?

And here is a comforting little item that might be of interest to mothers and grandmothers who are trying unsuccessfully to lose weight.

This is what no less a person than Norman Hartnell (the Queen's dressmaker) says . . . "Mothers and grandmothers should have generous bosoms, comfortable waistlines and full hips. Mother should look like what she is supposed to be . . . a plump, comfortable symbol of security."

Yes please, make mine a chocolate marshmallow sundae!

MORE ABOUT CREDIT UNION

the group's own credit and supervising committees.

A potential borrower is checked by the committees before the loan is approved.

BIG ADVANTAGE

The credit union has an advantage over any other loan organization. The members of the committees are from the general community. Even before the name of a potential borrower is mentioned his standing in the community is known. This system of checking and its accompanying reliance on the integrity of a man among his fellows has paid off big dividends. The average loss through bad debts among credit unions across the North American continent amounts to less than one-fifth of one per cent. Saanich Peninsula Credit Union has a record of less than half of this figure, 0.07 per cent.

The directorate is elected by the membership. The directors assume control of the organization within the limitations of its charter and the controls exerted by the provincial government.

The provincial government supervises the overall operation of all credit unions in the province and operations must strictly toe the line.

SECURITY AFFORDED

What security is afforded? This question is almost invariably asked by potential members. The security is afforded primarily by the manner of election of the directors and by the provincial government supervision.

A further proviso exists to safeguard members' investments. A central reserve fund has been established to which all credit unions in the province contribute. If a serious blow should befall any individual group, then assistance may be obtained from this reserve.

The organization offers savings facilities and lending privileges. It also insures all loans to the full amount in the event of death.

MOST WAS CHEDDAR

More than six per cent of the 10,000,000,000 pounds of milk used in dairy factories in Canada last year went to cheese plants. Most of the cheese produced was the traditional Canadian cheddar.

RECTOR MEETS LADIES OF W.A. AT PARISH HALL

Afternoon branch of St. Andrew's and Holy Trinity W.A. met in the parish hall on Wednesday, Oct. 7, with 13 members present. In the absence of the president, Vice-President Mrs. R. Melville was in the chair.

Mrs. Melville introduced the new rector, Canon F. Vaughan-Birch, to the members and he opened the meeting by reading from St. Matt. 9:9-13, followed by the W.A. Litany and prayers.

During the business session, reports of the officers were received. The educational secretary gave a paper on "Old Age and Their Problems", taken from the study book, "He Cares". Nomination papers were given out, and Mrs. Merryfield was appointed convener of the nominating committee with Mrs. Nanson. Mrs. Melville thanked all the members who helped with the refreshments for the Dominion annual meeting held in Victoria last month.

Next meeting will be the annual meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 4, in the parish hall, at 2.30 p.m. All officers are asked to bring a report of the year's work to that meeting. Mrs. Pearson moved the adjournment, and the meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer. Tea was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Merryfield and Mrs. Nanson.

MORE THAN FIFTY

There are more than 50 types of Canadian-made cheese. Many of these are being made by immigrants who brought their cheese-making secrets with them from European countries.

WILL YOU THINK OF SOMEONE?

Tonight I'll sit by a fireside,
In a warm and cozy home . . .
Count my many blessings
And set my thoughts to roam.
I'll think of Charlie Thompson,
I saw him just today . . .
But Charlie didn't see me
As he White-Caned on his way.
I'll think of little children,
Who need some love and care . . .
And wonder what can happen
When Mom and Dad aren't there.

I'll think of Granny Miller,
The lonely life she leads . . .
The little but the vital things
That would ease her list of needs.
I'll think of many others,
Some old, some young, some maimed,
People whom I've never met
But know misfortune claimed.
These will fill my thoughts tonight,
I won't be wondering
"whether" . . .
When neighbor Don knocks on my door
Proudly wearing a Red Feather.

NURSERY FOUNDED BEFORE PATRICIA BAY HIGHWAY

Jack W. B. Watson, who has operated a nursery on Patricia Bay Highway before there was even a Patricia Bay Highway, has been advised to take life easier following illness which was brought about early this spring from the continual rush which is known at the nursery.

Mr. Watson, who has always had a love for the soil, started working on farms as a boy in England. At the age of 17 he travelled to Canada alone and took a position with the Experimental Farm at Kentville, N.S. Later he travelled west to harvest on prairie farms.

In December of 1931 he decided to join the R.C.M.P. and worked his way up the ranks until he became N.C.O. in charge of the Victoria Detachment, which was responsible for enforcing the federal statutes on Vancouver Island and adjacent islands. One of the big problems at the time was narcotics enforcement.

In 1939 he married Nellie Trower of Winnipeg, whom he had been engaged to before joining the force.

20 YEARS

Sergt. Watson, after 20 years in the force, left the service on the advice of his doctor for an occupation which would develop the muscles along his spine. It was agreed that the nursery business would be ideal.

Having purchased property in 1949 which was solid bush, the Watson family decided to undertake a wholesale business from their land. Previously, in 1942, Mr. and Mrs. Watson purchased property on what is now known as Dencross Terrace and to gain access to their piece of land the former R.C.M.P. officer relates they had either to go down

Mount Newton Cross Road and follow the old C.N.R. railway grade or to follow a trail along the edge of the experimental farm and through a series of gates. This trail he relates is now known as Lowe Road and Amity Drive.

Clearing land adjacent to the old C.N.R. railway grade, which they had purchased, the couple planned on growing holly and other items for a wholesale operation. With the continued use of the railway grade by themselves and merchants the family was delighted to see a grader come one day and make a decent road past their residence.

With more traffic using the road the proprietors of the nursery decided they would sell some plants from a roadside stand. The first day they put articles on the stand they were informed the road would be closed for further improvements. With this decision forced upon them, it was decided to open a nursery stall in Sidney.

HIGHWAY With the road complete and named the Patricia Bay Highway, business picked up to such an extent that Mr. Watson found that his wife could not cope with business at home and decided to give up his Sidney stall.

Doing a good business, it was decided to import several varieties of azaleas, camelia and rhododendrons, then the bad frost of a few years ago hit the nursery and they had to start over again. Bedding plants were specialized in and soon the couple found they could not keep pace with the demand. This spring the pitch at which Mr. Watson drives himself caught up with him and he found his sight was going. Doctors told him it was a warning signal and he had better take it easy.

Next year there will be no bedding plants for sale at the nursery—just geraniums and hanging baskets will be undertaken, he relates. He hopes to sell out the nursery stock and eventually plans to dispose of the nursery.

Six years ago Mr. Watson helped reorganize the North Saanich Garden Club and served as president for a time. The organization, which was one of the first in B.C., had been inactive for a number of years. With the number of garden enthusiasts in the northern part of Saanich, Mr. Watson and several other gardeners started the club anew. One of the garden club's activities, that of encouraging school children to garden and compete with each other, was encouraged by the former policeman.

Speaking of his new profession, he said, "I feel fortunate that one of my customers opened the door to a new future for me." He is now licensed to sell stocks and bonds as an authorized agent, representing Capital Management Co. of Victoria.

MRS. W. REAGAN RE-ELECTED AT ART CENTRE

Mrs. W. Reagan was re-elected to serve a second term as president of the Saanich Peninsula Art Centre at the sixth annual meeting held in the Sidney hotel on the evening of October 5.

During the course of the business meeting a reading of the "History of the Year" by Mrs. C. F. Hunt, secretary, was warmly applauded, affording the members an opportunity to relive the activities of the past year.

A most enjoyable part of the evening was a display by Moncrieff Williamson, of the Victoria Art Gallery, which consisted of an exhibition of graphic art loaned by a group of young artists in Calgary, rendered in a variety of styles ranging from exquisite drawing in the traditional manner to abstract.

WEEKLY REPORT OF NORTH SAANICH STATION

CONTROLLING GRASS ALONG FENCELINES

Home owners are often troubled with grass and other weeds growing along fence lines or other areas adjacent to lawns. Such unwanted vegetation takes considerable time and effort to remove or to keep trimmed, especially if it's in a fence line or other location where a scythe or mower cannot be used.

This problem arises annually at the Experimental Farm along fence lines adjacent to areas which are kept mown. To permit the grass and other weeds out of reach of the mower to grow unchecked is untidy and unsightly, but hand trimming at least two or three times around the fenceposts each season is an expensive alternate. The possibility of spraying with chemicals has been investigated during the past two or three seasons and this method has proved both effective and inexpensive.

During the past season amino triazole and dalapon and combinations of the two, were the herbicides used most extensively. The best results were with a mixture of dalapon (sold as Dowpon) and amino triazole at five and four pounds per acre respectively of active ingredient. This is roughly equivalent to one ounce of Dowpon formulation and one and a fifth ounce of 50 per cent wettable amino triazole per 436 feet of fence line one foot wide. The amount of solution used in this length of fence line sprayed was 1.4 gallons, but this would vary with the individual sprayer. It is advisable, however, not to apply the herbicides in more water than will adhere to the foliage without running off. The application should be applied when the grass is growing actively, preferably in the spring before it is high enough to become unsightly. If left too long, it will become necessary to trim it first.

While dalapon has been found at Saanichton to be a more effective grass killer than amino triazole, it is ineffective on broad-leaved weeds. Amino triazole, on the other hand, while a fairly good grass killer, will permit considerable grass elongation, resulting in a ragged appearance of the sprayed area. It is, however, effective on broad leaved weeds, and therefore is especially useful where there is a mixed weed population. The two together appear to be more effective on grass than either singly with the added assurance of giving control of broad leaved weeds.

Such sprays have a temporary sterilizing effect only, and must be applied annually. Certain grasses, such as Orchard grass, often found along fence lines are somewhat resistant and may require respraying.

Other sprays can be used for the same purpose. One of these is polychlorate, which is also very effective on yards or driveways where it will give good seasonal control of weeds at the rate of three to five pounds per 100 square feet. Because of limited solubility, however, it requires a fairly large volume of water, and it is usually easier to apply it with a watering can, rather than a sprayer.

Second Lecture

A good turnout attended the second lecture in the St. John Ambulance first aid course being given under the civil defence in the Legion hall, with Mrs. V. J. Harroway instructing. For the remainder of the month classes will be held on Tuesdays at 8 p.m.
